TOPICS OF INTEREST TO EVERY WOMAN

EDITED BY JULIA CHANDLER MANZ

A WOMAN MADE RADIANT BY HER CARE OF OTHERS

Helen Gould Is the Type of Woman that the Warm-hearted American Public Loves and Admires.

By FRANCES SHAFER.

From the time of the first intimation that Miss Helen Gould had reached the turn in her life-road leading to matrimony, there has been a fair chance to look down into the depths of the American heart and to judge a bit of the type of woman that the warm-hearted public most admires.

It is not often that one is granted an opportunity really to judge and to learn some of the standards and ideals that are given high place for the public like the individual, is not prone to wear its heart on its sleeve, at least not in matters that come closest to daily living.

And so it is with particular interest and no small pleasure that one listens to all that is said and reads the sincere, ringing words of affection for a woman who had many roads before her and who modestly chose the one labeled "service."

All Know Her.

It is not strange that the soldiers and sailors are ready to render their tributes, not remarkable at all that the beneficiaries of her generous purse pronounce her a queen among women, and nobody doubts that the United States in her home for crippled children has given her the devotion of his baby-heart. For they all know who she is, what she does—and they love her.

But the admiration, or something stronger, does not stop there. It reaches out and out to those who simply catch an echo of the way of her life goes by, the quiet way she takes to help where help is needed, and the sincerity and purpose that crown all her acts.

And now that she is soon to give her hand in marriage to the man who has seen her heart, the comments of the press are very revealing. For while she has a beautiful home, stately possessions, and millions enough to make plain folk open their eyes, it is of none of these things that the newspapers write.

Here's that Counts.

It is of Helen Gould herself—not her jewels, not her money, not the entertainments that she gives, not her yacht, nor her care, but herself, made radiant by her care for others.

As her wedding day approaches, the story will still be the same, for the glory of fine material and the splendor of royal splendor will be quite overshadowed by the dignity of her simple self and by reflection of the kindly work that she has done.

And it wholesomely emphasizes the fact that at heart there is no real adoration for a woman whose ambition is to outshine the rest of her world in the gowns and the gems she wears, and most of all in the amazing entertainments that she gives.

Was it only yesterday that we read of a woman high in the social life of one of our larger cities who planned to give a series of entertainments, so elegantly and so regally splendid that they would outclass anything that had gone before, even in the ranks of high society itself? She achieved the first, and it was dazzling. Indeed, she gave the second—and there she stopped.

For the word had gone forth that that first splendid ball had cost a very pretty penny, and somehow it was not quite popular down in a different walk of life. It was said the modest sum of $50,000 was scattered in that single entertainment, but the newspapers declared that as a matter of fact, the cost was only $20,000. The figures looked so amazingly big to those people down below that they sent threatening letters to the Lady-of-the-Bazaar-Entertainments, and the series was never carried out. At least, nothing more reached the public.

Money Given to Spend.

And out in the golden West, where they say fortunes are pretty easy, they are telling of another woman who recently was left a little legacy amounting to $10,000. She made no secret of her creed that "money is only given to spend," and straightaway went to work to get out of it the very most she could.

It was shortly before the holidays, and she made a trip East to equip herself with a few little things that she wanted. She bought a $100,000 wardrobe, $250,000 worth of diamonds and rode in her new private car from her brief shopping trip, during which she spent the tidy little sum of $70,000. She is "out for a good time," so she says, and she goes

Hints for the Housewives.

To erase all trace of scorch stains, wet the scorched place, rub with soap, and bleach in the sun.

After blacking a stove, try rubbing it over with a rag dipped in turpentine and polishing off in the usual way. It will give a nice jet black polish that will last a long time.

Boots and shoes, however damp, will polish in a few minutes if a drop of kerosene oil is added to the blacking. It also prevents the leather from cracking.

It is not generally known that wringing out a cloth in hot water and wiping the furniture, before putting on the furniture cream, will result in a very high polish that will not show finger marks.

about it according to the drift of her mind and the quality of her heart.

But the great American public—if it takes her measure at all, what does it reckon her worth?

Small and Narrow.

That public, of which we are a tiny part, would rightly like a lot of money itself. It loves all the luxuries and the beautiful things that money controls, and it might grow pretty reckless and extravagant itself—quite likely it would, once given the chance.

But if it would go beyond the limits of vanity, then the public better stay right where it is. For it does seem sort of small and very narrow to hold one's jewels, one's entertainments, and one's overflowing wardrobe in such affectionate regard.

And one woman, living her life in her own splendid way, having about her all the fine things that money can buy when there is a still finer spirit to guide and direct, yet give once giving herself over to meaningless display, always purposeful, hopeful, and true.

That is the type of woman to win and to hold the American heart.

SUIT FOR THE LITTLE MAID.

There is no feasible reason why the attic should not be made into an attractive room, especially when the house lacks space. The fact that it is situated at the top of the house need not detract from its possibilities. Removed from the other rooms, it can be a most desirable retreat for reading or study purposes.

The number of stairs to be climbed prevents the frequent intrusions so annoying to the student.

The attic with a little ingenuity and taste, can be converted into a charming study, library or bed-sitting room.

Do not consider the task hopeless if the beams are exposed. They can be stained and varnished, a dark brown, adding much to the attractiveness of the room.

A number of attics have sloping roofs. Aim to give as much height to the room as possible. The low, unsightly corners can be utilized for book shelves. If the walls are celled or plastered, paper them with plain paper of a neutral color.

Tint the Walls.

Cold water paint is inexpensive and can be had in many tones. The plastered walls may be successfully tinted by this means.

Stain the floor and cover with small rugs.

A good strong matting of a light brown shade looks and wears well. It also produces greater warmth. Many people prefer the floor entirely covered. If expense is not to be considered, a large rug of rich warm coloring produces an artistic effect.

The window draperies should be considered next. Madras, cambric cloth and serge of tan color are green color are appropriate for this purpose.

When all the woodwork is stained brown, the furniture should match. If the room is to be a library, the walls beneath the sloping roof should be filled with book shelves.

Smooth pine planks cut in the right lengths and stained will accommodate many books.

Ordinary store boxes, fastened securely together, will make a charming window seat. Provide a long cushion covered with cretonne or cambric cloth, to match the window draperies, for this window seat.

Bank with Cushions.

Hang a frill of the same material around the three sides to hide the boxes. Bank the window seat with cushions.

If a bed is placed in the room, select a small one. Have a cover made of the same material as the window seat, to slip over the bed when not in use.

A screen will effectively conceal the dressing table if the sitting room must serve as a bed chamber.

The attic should not be a place used only for storing purposes. One portion may be reserved for trunks and discarded articles, but this large, airy, sunny room should not go to waste.

The attic makes the most delightful playroom. Imagine! Have you ever spent a day under the eaves, and heard the rain pattering on the roof? If not, you have missed a great pleasure.

The next time it rains take an interesting climb to the attic. Settle yourself comfortably and experience the peaceful, calm, dreamy, sheltered feeling which comes to those who love the top of the house.

beans should be cooked so as to have some left for soup. The mutton left over is used for luncheon next day, boiled rice left to fry, half a can of tomatoes for sauce for fish. The shrimp cakes are to be set aside and used for sauce for blanc mange, and the leaves and trimmings from celery to be used for fritters.

Cod with Tomato Sauce—Prepare a pint of tomato sauce, add a half pound of cod, lay on baking pan with half a cupful of sauce. Bake till the fish begins to draw from bones, basting frequently with a little sauce. Keep the remainder hot and serve in a boat with the fish.

When Cleaning Silk.

Grease stains may be removed with French chalk, magnesia, or ether.

Use bread crumbs to clean white broad-cloth silk.

To remove grease from black silk, rub with a piece of brown paper.

To clean diamond rings, brush them with cold water, and rub them under the cold water faucet. Be sure the stones are firmly set. A drop of ammonia on the underside of a diamond will clean it at once.

To clean a diamond ring, take a ball piece of wire, and use it to make flowers stand up in a bowl. Take a piece of wire netting, crush it up into a ball and place it in the bowl; then stick the flower stems into the wire, and they will stand up.

To lighten wooden floors, add two tablespoonfuls of kerosene to hot, soapy water. It will cleanse the boards and will destroy any insect that may be in the cracks of the wood.

Not Padding.

Take two eggs, half a cup of sugar, one tablespoonful butter, half a cup of water and flour to make a stiff batter. Stir well together, add a teaspoonful baking powder, mix with a little flour. Bake in a buttered dish for half an hour and serve with the following sauce: One cup sugar, one heaping tablespoonful flour, one teaspoonful butter, and little nutmeg. Mix a cup of cold water. Stir together over the fire until it is smooth and creamy. Add a teaspoonful of vinegar or lemon juice or a little tart fruit juice, and serve.

Henry's Popcorn Balls.

Take a cupful of strained honey, put it in a saucepan and boil until it will form a soft ball when dropped into cold water; have ready a good-sized bowl of freshly popped corn. Pour the honey over it, mixing all the while. When a little cool, grease the hands, mold the corn into balls and place them on greased paper. A cupful of sugar and half a cupful of water may be boiled to a sirup and used in the same fashion. These balls are the special delight of children.

Clock in Kitchen.

There should be a clock in every kitchen. In many houses the dining-room or hall clock has to answer this purpose. This makes a great many unnecessary steps, running back and forth. Save time and energy both by getting a kitchen clock.

Good Use for Empty Spoons.

Save all the empty spoons, and when going to the seashore, or country house, you will find by nailing them in the closets, you will have hooks to hang the finest of apparel on, without fear of rust. They are far superior to the hooks usually found in these places.

To prevent hard boiled eggs from turning a dark color, place them when taken out of the boiling water into a basin of cold water for a few moments. This will not only preserve their natural color, but render them much more easy to shell.

Hooft will be represented by Attorney John L. Jeffries, of Norfolk, and John L. Lynch, of Alexandria.

A venire of twenty-five summonses has been summoned from Fredericksburg, Va., and they will arrive here early to-morrow morning. It is expected that the case will occupy several days, inasmuch as there are a large number of witnesses to be heard on both sides.

Testimony All In.
